Best Italian food on the coast by Oregon Coast Guide

Since 1911, a restaurant has occupied this bluff overlooking the estuary where the Yachats River meets the Pacific Ocean. Watch for the seals, eagles, gulls and herons that abound in the water below.

Our food is homemade from our own recipes. We take a simple, authentic approach.

We don't use trans fats or drown our fish in sauces. We use only wild salmon, Dungeness crab and Yaquina Bay oysters (small for best taste.) Our fish & chips are lightly battered so the taste of the fish can come through, just like it did in the old days on the coast.

We use only olive oil or canola oil. Our Italian recipes are from southern Italy via Long Island, N.Y., presenting the simple taste of old world Italy. We feature a marinara sauce that allows the full flavor of the tomatoes to shine through, homemade baked ziti, and hand rolled fresh meatballs.

We also feature live music in the Landmark Lounge every weekend. Check out our website or the poster near the exit for a schedule of bands.

The restaurant started as a cookhouse for a small band of settlers, then became a tiny cafe sitting beside the dirt road that ended at the river a quarter of a mile south.

Highway 101 was completed in 1934 and a woman from Portland, the industrious and effusive Beulah Swigert, took over the place, naming it the Sea View Inn and building a reputation for home cooking that drew national attention.

Beulah died in 1959 (but many say she hasn't left the building) and the Sea View changed hands twice before two men from Portland, Richard Heath and Larry Zimmerman, took over in 1968. They built the sweeping dining room and expanded into the neighboring auto parts store (now the back room of the bar with the stage and pool table).

In 1989, the place was purchased by absentee ownership but returned to local control in 2002, and the current owners have tried to make the Landmark live up to its history, giving visitors a chance to experience the coast the way it was before chain restaurants and corporate sameness.

Less than one-half of one percent of the world's coastline is estuary frontage such as ours. We feel proud to be here and be able to help you enjoy the Oregon Coast as much as we do. Bon appetit!
